

Hello,

Thank you so much for the event on Wednesday. It is such an honour to have a Lund University Global Scholarship, and to be one of the lucky students getting to study here in Lund.

After the ceremony, when we went upstairs to eat, being new in Sweden I had taken a meatball without taking any sauce. The Vice-Chancellor, himself, was eating and talking with a small group of us students, and offered me some lingonberry sauce from his plate. It was really delicious, and so amazing and difficult to believe, that there I was, meeting and talking to some of the brightest students from around the world, and sharing lingonberry sauce with the Vice-Chancellor of one of the best universities.

I have since met up with two new friends from the ceremony. I met one for a jog through the Botanical Gardens and I ran into another at brunch at a student nation today. The past month has been amazing. I am really enjoying life here in Lund, and my classes are exactly what I was hoping for. I am really looking forward to my studies and to being part of Lund University during the next two years.

Thank you so much for this opportunity,

Sincerely,
Sarah Swan
